DANGERS OF A COLD

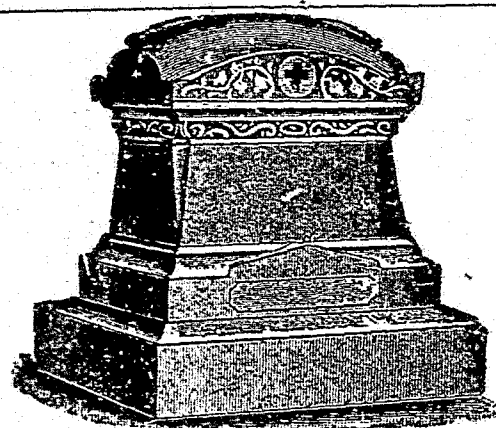

Norway People Will Do Well to Heed Them

Many had cases of kidney trouble result from a cold or chill. Congested kidneys fall behind in filtering the poison-laden blood and backache, headache, dizziness and disordered kidney action follow. Don't neglect a cold. Use Doan's Kidney Pills at the first sign of kidney trouble. Follow this Norway resident's example:

W. O. Needham, retired farmer, 230 Main St., says: "At different times when I have taken cold my kidneys were affected. I began using Doan's Kidney Pills when I felt my kidneys needed a tonic and Doan's always strengthened my kidneys and cleared my system of the excessive uric acid. I always feel better in a short time after using this remedy and know that Doan's are what give me relief." (Statement given July 24, 1908.)

On September 3, 1920, Mr. Needham said: "I haven't changed my good opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills since recommending them years ago. Doan's benefited me greatly and I haven't lost an opportunity of recommending them since."

BRIDGTON

Merton E. Soule, Wednesday, March 28, at his home in Portland, from heart failure, came as a shock to family and friends here. Mr. Soule was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Soule, now residing on the Highlands, and was 37 years and 9 months of age at the time of his death. He was educated at Bridgton Academy, Boston University, and at the time of his death was accountant for the Sanders Engineering Co. of Portland. He was a member of the Elks and Woodford Country Club, President of the Universalist Men's Club, and a member and active worker in the Congress Square Church. He was married ten years ago to Bessie Stanley of Bethel, who survives him, also his parents, a brother, Winthrop, and a sister, Mrs. Mabelle W. Robinson of New York, and many friends in Portland and elsewhere.

Funeral services were held at the Congress Square church, on Saturday, Dr. Albion paying a high tribute to his character and the esteem in which he was held by the church and all his friends. His sudden passing, in the midst of an active, useful life, brings the deepest grief to relatives and friends, but the memory of a worthy Christian young man who had made a place for himself in the community in which he lived.

EFFECTS OF HOME TRAINING ON CHILD DEVELOPMENT

In primitive life and in the early races of mankind the home has always played an important part in the education of youth. In modern times the home has shifted its responsibility in a large degree upon the school. The function of the school is definite in the teaching of certain fundamental subjects, but the home can never supply the training that the home should give the child.

The home should be considered as an environment, and every environment has a certain reaction upon the individuals in that environment. Any mother who watches the development of her children will discover that no two children react in the same way to certain conditions. Because of this difference in the natures of children it is necessary for those interested in the child to study his early life and the way in which he adapts himself to his surroundings.

Education as a whole is really the directing of observation. One learns so as to be able to apply that training to the definite situations which that individual may meet later. If we have no powers of observation we have no problems. Without problems, and those problems solved, there is no growth or development.

In the early training of the child I would consider three important points: obedience, responsibility, and faith. The child very early in life should be taught to respond immediately to the desires of its parents. This is brought about by having the child do what we ask him to do and do it at once. It means the assimilation of many of the meaningless "don'ts." A child who has been trained to be obedient finds later in life that when he has things to do with no one to order him around he does them very much easier and quicker than the child who has been allowed to follow always the line of least resistance.

The training of responsibility is a definite function of the home. Even the young child should have definite things to do, and be taught that those things are his, as little chores. As he grows older the child should be taught to observe, and his actions guided by the observations, with the feeling that whatever has to be done should be done by him as far as he is capable to do it. There has been a great tendency all through the history of mankind to shift responsibility on someone else.

This tendency can be corrected only in the early development of the child in his home relations. If a child who has reached his 'teen age shows no sense of responsibility, we find it exceedingly hard to instill any such ideas in his mind or to make them a part of his training.

We have in the development of faith another function that must be largely brought out in the home life. This means strict living on the part of the father and mother. It is indeed an unfortunate child who grows up lacking in faith and confidence in his own parents. The father and mother should always take the attitude of advisers, not dictators. Their relations with the children should be such that the daughter should be ready and willing at all times to reveal all things to her mother. The son should feel free to talk over with his father any problem that may have come into his life.

A few children are grown-up into men and women of great personality and character from the training where they received little training and little care. A great many of our greatest men and women declare that their success has been based upon the home training, and the faith and guidance of a wise mother and a far-seeing father. No parents can afford to neglect their children, for all the surroundings in their home that some other people have their children will be handicapped. Any parent who is human in his or her attitude toward the child can influence that child so that life will overcome all handicaps.

"PASSING BY"

"Was nothing but a foolish song that long ago you sang
Underneath the velvet skies beneath the stars
Careless were the words of it, but when it
Lifting rang
Gaily from the lips of you, oh, magic were
The bars!

Magician dreams were every note, they wove
Their spells on eyes
Loved imagines entwined our hearts grown
Hopeless with the years;
And homelike on the naked void beneath the Naked skies

We knelt and prayed to Memory, whose diadem
Is tears.
Oh, you have gone the distant road all feet
Must seek some day
And never more the crystal notes will stir
Your singing tongue;
And all forgot the foolish words that leaped
One golden day.

When weary hearts and dreary hearts burst
Bonds and blossomed young,
But sometimes in the smoky dusk, when God
And ghosts are nigh,
Sometimes when we meet again as in those
Far off years,
Comes the little song again, and you are passing
Hand in hand with Memory, whose diadem
Is tears.

OPTIMISM

Sometimes our hearts are troubled,
Then the world is cold and drear;
And it seems we have but little
To cheer.
Our saddened lives to cheer.

There are many cares and sorrows,
Almost more than we can bear,
It is then, when our burdens are heavy,
It seems gloomy everywhere.

But they say "it is always darkest
Just before the dawn of day."
"Every cloud has a silver lining."
"Could we only see it that way."

Days that are fraught with anguish,
Are as periods of rest,
"Yet the soul would have no rainbow,
Mad the human heart no tears."
Each trial we bear bravely
Is another victory won,
And the soul reflects its image
With the radiance of the sun.

When life seems a weary journey,
Light the way with a smile of cheer,
Then the soul will wear "the rainbow,"
But the heart will be minus "the tear."

The above lines were suggested to me during the first anxious days my dear mother was in the hospital.

Mrs. Gladys (Frost) Swan, Woodford, Me.

A TRIP TO FLORIDA

By Mrs. Lydia L. Shedd

A party of ten, consisting of Dr. and Mrs. Bennett, Dr. and Mrs. Hubbard, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sanborn, Mr. and Mrs. George Marr, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Shedd, recently took a trip to Falmes, calling on old friends and taking a look around town. They ate their lunch at Dr. Hubbard's farm on the cool vine covered porch, an ideal spot for a picnic. Each one carried a bountiful supply of all kinds of edibles—bread, cheese, meats, pies, frosted cake, cookies of all varieties, doughnuts, Guava, jelly, prepared mustard, coffee, tea, root-beer, etc. We called on Mrs. Straw, at her beautiful home, one of the finest residences in town. She is a resident of Bethel, Maine and spends her winters at Falmes, Fla. Her husband, Mr. Hastings also of Bethel is visiting her. We took tea at Oslo by Indian River. It was a delightful drive, and the perfect day was enjoyed by all. Dr. Hubbard has a large orange and grapefruit grove at Falmes.

This place derived its name from a family from England, named Fels, the far famed Fels Naphtha Soap inventor whose daughter, Marion Fels translated a Russian book into English, the proceeds of which she gave for the building of the beautiful Public Library, called the Marion Library. Fine churches and school buildings, beautiful residences, wonderful shrubs and shade trees make this an ideal winter resort.

If one goes to Vero, they should visit at A. E. Conway's, where he has a fine Nursery of Citrus fruits, beautiful roses of all varieties, Indian Relics, Mexican Pottery, Aztec Axes, images, Mexican money, an ancient tortoise shell comb from China, hand carved bird of Paradise on it. It measures a foot each way. Philippine relics, Macanilla plates with coat of arms, German cup with coat of arms, Lustre ware, Willow, Mulberry, Salt, glass and other valuable ware too numerous to mention are also to be seen there. A Hawaiian panel of reed from Aloha, Honolulu. Mr. Conway has groves of all kinds of fruit. He came from Mexico at the time of the up rising.

One of the finest drives in the state is through Cocoa, a macadamized road, with Palm trees of all varieties along the way filled in with wonderful vines and flowers. It follows the winding in, and out of the river. The largest varieties of shade trees trimmed in every conceivable shape, with the most beautiful flowers known fill the grounds on every hand, fences covered with Spanish moss, one cottage covered entirely with this lovely silver gray moss is a picturesque sight. Here we visited the Cocoa Zoo, with its largest collection of native wild animals in the state, just off Dixie Highway, is Highland Park, North Cocoa, 30 cts. admission. There are over one thousand alligators of all sizes. Lion, the monster yet alligator who does wonderful stunts, the American Eagle, many tame doe, deer and buck, black bear, cubs, cages of monkeys, three kinds, foxes, wild cats, skunks, rabbits, coons, raccoons, and opossum, her little ones he hides in her pocket, tame ground hog, porcupine, guinea pigs, (two species), gophers, civil cat, wood chuck similar to ours, cinnamon bears, white rats, Iguana, cages of snakes, cottonmouth, moosehairs.

We have seen many others not seen here, a few of which are, the diamond rattler, ground rattler, water moccasin, snake, and diamond back moccasin, whip snake. The coach whip snake black head, crossed in front of our car on our way through a ten mile swamp. Its body was yellow. There were birds of all kinds at the zoo—carrier pigeons, hawks, caracaras, eagles, vultures, turkey buzzard, herons, Florida quail parrots, yellow heads, red heads, Mexican Parakeets, Australian Parakeets and goldfish. All of these and more are seen here in Florida, with the exception of the parrots. All but one species of the parrot family in Florida is extinct.

My next letter will be about our homeward trip.

CONTEST ON

One of the most unique contests ever conducted by a Maine manufacturer is now appearing in other columns of this paper.

This so-called S & H Maine Maid Massive Contest is a contest that has set whole families at the sitting-room table waiting for angles in rhyme dialogue.

The company initials S and H—have been played upon by making it SHE and HE. The purpose of the contest is that each contestant shall pen in rhyme a dialogue that might take place between SHE and HE about S and H Maine Maid Ice Cream.

With a food product so well known and well liked, it seems an easy matter to "tell about it in rhyme."

Grand prizes of $40.00 and $20.00 respectively will be presented to persons whose rhyme is judged the best and second best by the Board of Judges.

Any others selected and published will be paid for at $1.00 each. The contest we understand, closes Saturday, April 14, 1923, at midnight. Although Rhyme, bearing a postmark of that date will be eligible.

The contest is being conducted by Simmons & Hammond Manufacturing Co. who make and distribute a wide variety of Ice Cream from their plants at Portland, Waterville and Bangor.

FRESHET AVERTED

With the snow going away gradually all danger of a spring freshet is practically eliminated. Although March proved to be a cold blustery month, the snow was sufficiently warm during the middle of the day to start the melting process and with the warm weather and recent rains one could fairly see the snow and ice disappear.

With the past winter making a new record in regard to the amount of snow falling, it was a pleasure to believe we would experience the greatest freshet in years, but from the fact that the ground has been covered with such a heavy blanket of snow for such an unusually long time, very little frost got into the ground thus leaving it in such condition that the water resulting from the snow as it melted was absorbed by old Mother Earth instead of flowing into the streams, thence to the river causing it to overflow its banks and menacing property along its course.

DAINGEROUS ENEMY TO WHITE PINE

Too few Maine people realize or appreciate the great asset white pine has been and still is to the State of Maine. The first sawmill in Maine was operated at Bethel in 1831. The next mill to operate was at Penobscot in 1843. By 1881 the mills at Penobscot had an annual output of 30,000,000 feet, principally white pine.

For a number of years Maine has held third place in the cut of white pine by states, cutting one-sixth of all white pine lumber manufactured in the United States. In 1919 the cut was nearly 225,000,000 feet. When you consider that white pine lumbering has been going on in Maine nearly 300 years and that the state still furnishes one-sixth of the pine lumber of the United States, you must realize that Maine is well named the "Pine Tree State."

In 1919 the white pine cut in Maine sawmill was valued at approximately $7,100,000, of which pine owners received $1,865,000, in stumpage. To-day Maine has approximately 3,000,000 acres of pine lands, 1,500,000 acres of which is immature growth. We find reproduction coming in throughout the southern half of the state. It is this young growth that the farmer, laborer, mill owner, and manufacturer must look to in the near future. Whether it ever reaches timber size depends on what action the owners take in protecting their growth from white pine blister rust.

White pine blister rust is a European disease with a bad reputation in its native country. It has made the growing of white pine impossible in Denmark, Holland and England, and is now threatening to make the growing of white pine impossible in the United States.

Blister rust is not caused by a bug or worm, but is a low form of plant life which lives in the inner bark of white pine trees and in the leaves of all varieties of currant and gooseberry bushes.

It is a fungus, a parasitic fungus, parasitic on currant and gooseberry bushes. The disease to spread there must be currant and gooseberry bushes within 900 feet of pine trees. One tree cannot spread the disease to another but can cause infection on currant or gooseberry bushes, and they in turn spread the disease to pine trees. Because of the fact that wild currant and gooseberry bushes are common we find blister rust on pines in every town in the southern half of the state.

Surveys show that the disease is spreading very rapidly. Seven to eleven percent of all pine trees in certain sections of the state have blister rust. Sample quarter-acre plots show even greater percentage of infection, running from 25 to 50 per cent. Once a pine tree becomes infected it surely dies. Therefore it is but a question of time before the pine area of Maine will become so badly infected that pine reproduction will never reach a timber size.

The United States Department of Agriculture and the state are cooperating with pines and pine owners in combating this disease. During the summer of 1922 eradication was carried on in 17 towns, mostly in York county. Nearly 500,000 currant and gooseberry bushes were pulled from 190,209 acres, representing 464 owners, and at a cost of less than five cents per acre.

The building is 30x65 with a tower and porch at the entrance. Interior furnishings will adequately answer all demands of the communicants.

FRYEBURG

Mrs. Alberta Mayberry Abbott. Fryeburg residents both old and young were enveloped in sadness when it was learned Mrs. Abbott had passed on. Mrs. Abbott had been ill less than a week and her condition was not known to be even serious, so her passing caused a shock.

Mrs. Abbott was born in Hiram sixty-four years ago Friday, Mar. 23. She married Cyrus Abbott of Stow, who died a few years after they were married, leaving his widow and one little daughter, Margaret Louise.

Mrs. Abbott moved to Fryeburg about thirty-five years ago, where she has taught music constantly and has been identified with everything pertaining to the best interest of Fryeburg. She has had large classes on the piano in Fryeburg and all the towns both up and down the line. Her pupils are scattered broadcast and they all loved Mrs. Abbott. She has been a conscientious teacher, believing she should give to her pupils what they pay for. Mrs. Abbott has kept up to date and taken lessons all the years, she has been teaching from the best teachers in Portland and Boston.

Mrs. Abbott has played the organs in both churches for years. She has taught music in Fryeburg Academy for several years and the last year had organized and trained a splendid orchestra in the Academy and the night she was taken ill she attended an entertainment where they played for the first time, no doubt being wholly inadequate to the effort required but her interest was so keen and her desire to have them do their best so strong she as on many other occasions sacrificed her own feelings. Mrs. Abbott's influence in this community is far-reaching and will linger many years.

She leaves one daughter, Mrs. E. E. Spear whose husband is a prominent lawyer in Boston, two fine grandsons of whom she was very fond, two sisters and three brothers.

Funeral services were held in the Congregational chapel, Sunday at 2:30, which was held by Rev. E. Wildes, her pastor paid a most deserving and beautiful tribute to Mrs. Abbott's memory, and her labors so lovingly performed during the past thirty years. Mr. B. C. Snyder one of New Hampshire's best soloists and a close friend of Mrs. Abbott rendered most feelingly, "Lead Kindly Light" and "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere." The display of flowers was really wonderful and spoke plainly of the high esteem in which Mrs. Abbott was held. The bearers were, James W. Eastman, Chas. Simpson, Asa O. Pike and Hugh W. Hastings.

THE LILIES OF THE FIELD

Consider the lilies of the field, and all the other glorious blooming evidences of beauty which annually speak to us in the meadows, in the forest aisles, by the streams, in the swamps, wherever the sun and the rains can penetrate the earth and woo them into being.

Most city dwellers love the wilding flowers, but they do not seem to understand that these need protection. We go abroad and gather lavishly, pull up by the roots, break and trample these tender expressions of Nature with a reckless disregard that is nothing less than criminal. We are warned that many beautiful wild plants are in danger of extinction for want of protection. Their disappearance would be a sad loss to the world.

The Vermont Legislature has taken proper action in this matter. It has decreed that certain groups of wild flowers and ferns shall be protected, just flowers and ferns. There are to be wild flowers sanctuaries.

We protect animals and birds, we should protect also the gems of beauty which each spring, summer and fall make of the great out-of-doors a veritable paradise to all Nature lovers.

Who would care to live in a world where no blue gentian waved, where the trailing arbutus could not be found, where daisies and innocents were lacking, where the fragrance of lilies of the valley did not taint the airs with the perfume of heaven?

The birds, the gentle wilding animal life, the flowers of wood and field and brookside—how could we do without them?

Every wild flower is a part of the universal life. We should regard them with reverent appreciation, and protect them by every possible restriction against their destruction.

FATHER FOUND TWO-YEAR-OLD BOY VERY SICK

Was Constipated, Thin, No Appetite, Had Swollen Lips, Stomach Pains

A hardy woodsman and enthusiastic fisherman of Maine, has a very interesting record to report. He writes: "As a boy, thirty-seven years ago, I began to take Dr. True's Elixir, the True Family Laxative and Worm Expeller. Once after six months hauling logs, I came out of the woods and found my two-year-old boy very sick. He was thin, had no appetite, had swollen lips, pains in stomach, was suffering from constipation for months.

"I had not been in the house an hour when an elderly lady—a good neighbor—came in and told my wife to get a bottle of Dr. True's Elixir, saying she had seen numbers of similar cases which it had relieved.

"My boy was given a half dozen doses of Dr. True's Elixir, when he passed a lot of worms and right away began to show improvement; he began soon to eat with a relish, play around and look healthy.

He did not have to take a full bottle, and in later years, whenever he got off his feed, a few doses would straighten him out quick.

"When I get constipated, a couple of teaspoons of Dr. True's Elixir, the True Family Laxative and Worm Expeller, fix me O. K."

"My son is grown up now and has a family of six children, and he has practically raised his family on Dr. True's Elixir. The children go out and get hold of something not good for them. It's hard to watch all the children, and so when they eat something they shouldn't and get sick, Dr. True's Elixir is given and the family is put in good shape again.

"I have read in the papers you have to take a half a dozen bottles of some remedies, but you don't have to do this with Dr. True's Elixir. Simply a few doses and then quick relief. The three generations of my family have been kept healthy by using it."

Symptoms of worms: constipation, offensive breath, swollen upper lip, de-ranged stomach, occasional pains in the bowels, pale face, eyes heavy and dull, short, dry cough, grinding of the teeth, red points on the tongue, starting during sleep, slow fever.

Nearly every child and grown-up needs a laxative sometime. The fond parents safeguard the health of their children, as well as their own, by keeping their bowels in condition. The herbs used in Dr. True's Elixir, are imported and of strictly pure quality. No harmful drugs. Keep the bowels regular by using Dr. True's Elixir, the True Family Laxative and Worm Expeller. 40c, 60c, $1.20.

GWENDELEEN ARROWNUT'S LIFE ON THE FARM

Written by Annie Gummings, Fryeburg, Me.

"Gwen, Gwen," came a shrill voice from the back door of the big log Farm house; it was the crusty voice of the aunt of little Gwendeleen Arrownut, who was lovingly playing with a pretty little coon cat in the door of the carriage house. She didn't seem to hear until her aunt threw an ear of corn, striking her on her slim little back. She at once started for the house dropping the kitten on the ground at her feet.

Her Aunt Nancy met her at the corner of the house and taking her roughly by the shoulders threw her to the pile of corn in the yard saying, "There you lazy brat of Satan I don't want to see you move away from there until you have husked and shocked every ear of that corn. Then you can lug in the wood and bring the water for night from the spring and turn out the cows and sheep and watch them until the sun sets then tie them up and help me with the supper and dishes."

After you get that done you can play one half hour with that miserable cat of yours. Do you hear me child? Why don't you answer—sit there like a dummy."

"Yes, Aunt Nancy I hear."

Well then go to work. It is four o'clock now. With this she gave the child a push that sent her sprawling on her face and went into the house. Now, Gwendeleen Arrownut was a beautiful child of fifteen with pretty golden hair and big blue eyes. She was very frail as she had worked hard all her life at this farm house, where she had lived since she was a baby. Now as she laid her head down to rest, she wondered if it was possible that she was in any way related to this rough, ugly old woman who put all the hardest tasks on her young shoulders. She had nine cows and thirty sheep to care for night and morning, besides the churning to do and helping with the household duties. Her aunt never spoke a kind word to her or ever let her out of the room. Her house was the only house for five miles around. This afternoon she wore a bright red dress that she had made herself of meal bags and colored. She loved blue but on this account her aunt would not hear of her wearing anything but black and red. She knew how she hated that color. It seemed to her like a crime to wear always a red dress the color of blood and then to change and wear a black one to mourn for the red one. Her aunt had dresses of every color it seemed—pink, yellow, blue, green and white and she hadn't one that suited her complexion and build.

She was large and skinned with red hair and freckles and a nose lightly turned up at the end in a very ugly fashion. Well she was just plain Nancy Brock and her husband, a tall, slim man, who never dared to say his soul was his own, had a sickness which no one but God can cure, caused by his hard work and nothing to eat. His wife had to make him work through rain and sun and wind and snow until he could stand it no longer, now on this day he sat on the little porch in front of the house trying to make up his mind to tell "Gwen" her history and ask her to leave this horrible place of worry and work after he died for he knew that somewhere in this big outside world there was a home and perhaps some relatives, but he never had time to speak with the girl alone, as Nancy was always watching them for she knew he pitied the beautiful girl and loved her too, with the love of a father, the only one she had ever known.

It was now five minutes past five and she had to get up, wash, and water and had turned the cows and sheep into the field. She must hurry with the chores and help Aunt Nancy with the supper and milking how she would love to read to her uncle Nat, if her aunt would allow her to but that was out of the question as she was never allowed to comfort the poor sick man who had ruined his life working for his wife and her. She waved her little hand to him and started for the barn, her aunt appeared at the door and told her she didn't want to see any more of that tomfoolery; so on she ran thinking hard of what other girls in boarding schools would think if they had to live like this. She had a number of boys in the old man and once given her as he was passing the little log school house where she attended school for three weeks each summer; her aunt had sent her to school when she was four years old, as she wasn't old enough to do much work and was only in the way, so she had been every summer until her aunt told her she had learned enough and too much of the foolishness learned in books of the high flown cities, where so many girls had ruined their lives and disgraced the name of their families and she knew that "Gwen" would be just like those bad girls she had heard so much about; she was just too lazy and stupid, not a bit like the Brooks or her family, the Baldwins. She was too high minded to be turned loose into the street, without her to look after her and keep her straight.

Eighteen months have passed since we left Nat Brock sitting on the porch of his home, eighteen months of loneliness for Nat, and eighteen months of misery and hard work for poor Gwendeleen leaving her dinner and pail that when we last saw her husking corn and playing with Betty, the kitten. Mr. Brock is laying very ill at his home where he has spent his life in hard work. Gwendeleen has just finished her chores and asked Aunt Nancy if she would not let her sit by Uncle Nat a half hour before she went to bed; and she answered, "You can sit in and sit with me. I couldn't trust." So Gwendeleen thanked her very kindly and followed her into the room of the dying man, she had not seen her uncle for three weeks, since he had been forced by his sickness to go to bed and he had felt so she just stood and looked at his thin pale face on the pillow. Then suddenly she took all her courage and proudly walked to his bedside and in spite of her aunt she knelt down by his side and took his thin hand in both her own and kissed him warmly on his cheek. "Oh, dear Uncle Nat, I am so sorry for you," but he said, "My darling child I am happier now than I have been for twenty years. I shall soon be where there is nothing but happiness." Nancy roughly took the girl's arm and snapped her to her feet then she screamed, "You see that door and you get through it. He is my husband and nothing to you, you miserable little brat loafer."

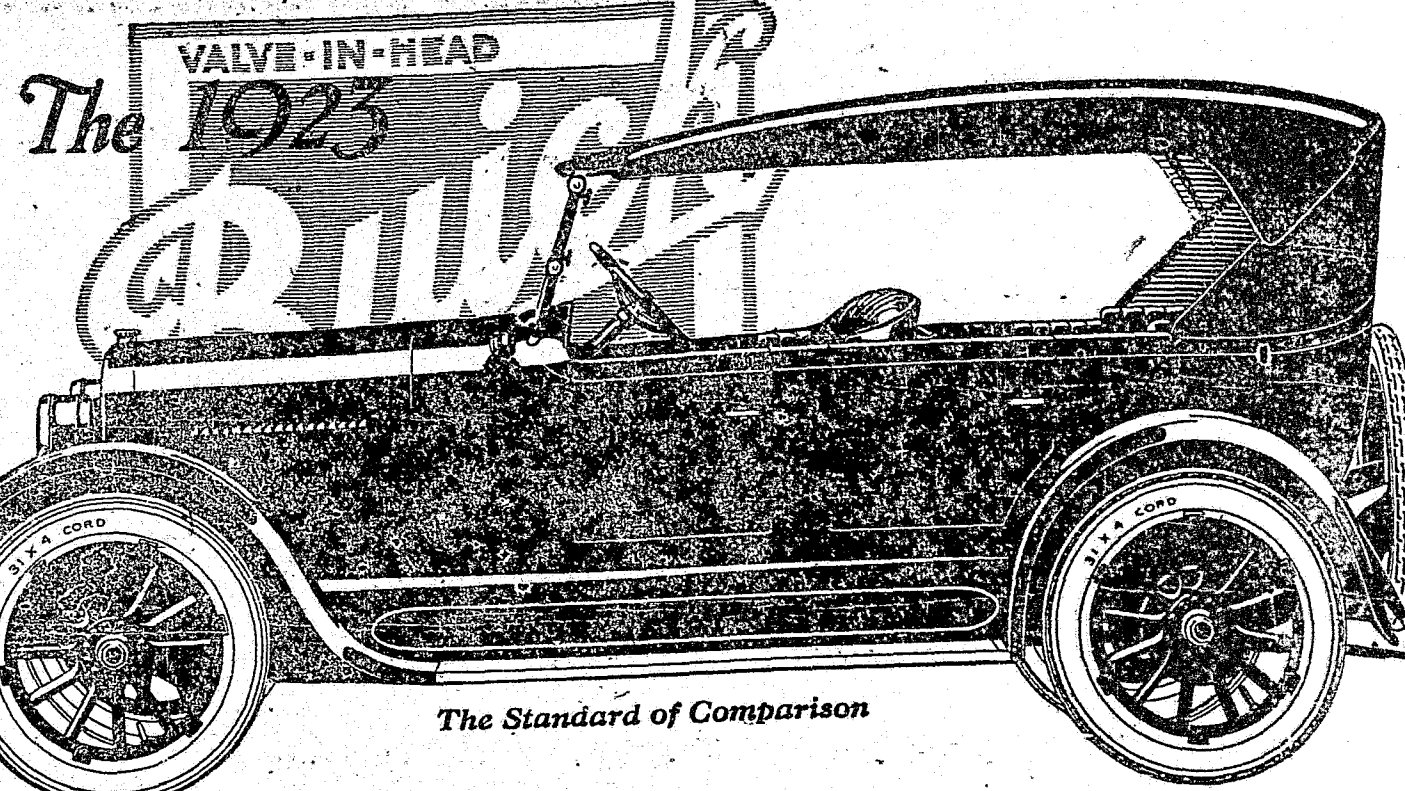

The girl looked her straight in the eye for the first time in her life and said, "Uncle Nat," she asked. "Yes, Gwen," he said, in a proud, thin voice. I wish you would stay. You make it much easier for me. Nancy forgive me if I am wrong, but there is something I would like to say while I am able as I don't think I shall be with you much longer. "How silly you talk," she said and laughed out of the room. Uncle Nat drew Gwendeleen to him and said, "My dear child I have a long time to tell you but I fear I haven't time so years ago I wrote it all and have kept it ever since." He slowly drew it from his bosom and passed it to her and then he said, "Now promise me my dear that as soon as I am gone that you will go to Newland where you will find a very dear friend of mine that will care for you and make it easier for you in the future, also take with you unbeknown to Nancy the little package you will find under the left corner of this carpet under that trunk, but don't get it until you are ready to go."

By this time Gwen was crying as if her heart would break. He said, "Kiss me, dear," and he could say no more more for his spirit had gone to God.

Gwendeleen kissed him many times and then called Nancy who didn't hurry but banged the doors after her as she came and ordered the girl to get out of the room and go for Pete, the boy who had stayed with them since Nat had been confined to the house.

Gwendeleen was crying as she rushed from the room and told Pete he was wanted.

Soon everything was all over and he was layed to rest in the family lot at Greenwald. Then Aunt Nancy told Gwendeleen she was to marry a rancher, the next Sunday and that Gwendeleen was to marry his son, who was a coarse giant of a fellow with long straight white hair and who was very fond of drink. She only smiled and told Aunt Nancy she would never marry any one in these lone some parts, and Aunt Nancy just said, "We will see who holds the ruling hand here. When Saturday comes you will be glad to marry George Cryx or I miss my guess."

Checks Protect You

A depositor received a bill from the store for some things he had purchased. He thought he had paid for them and he referred to his returned checks to make sure.

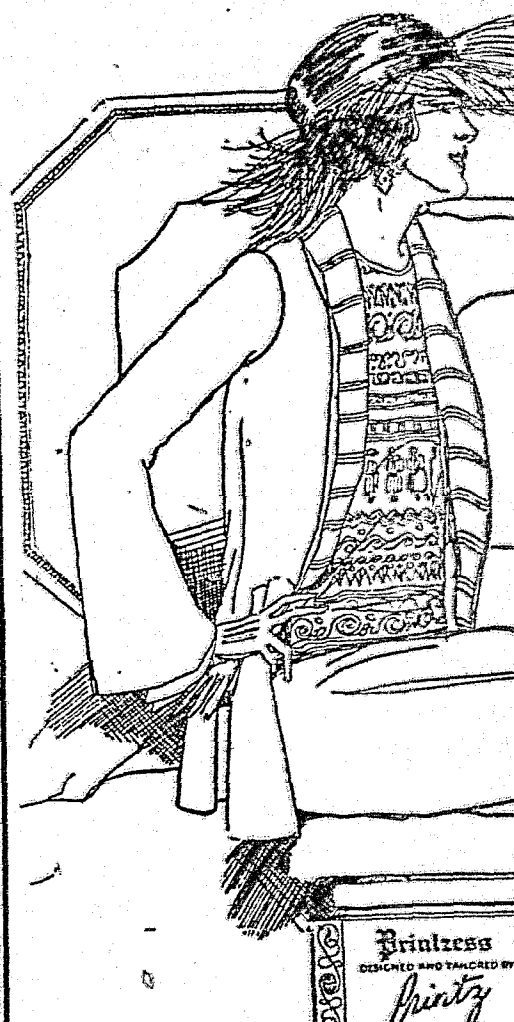

He found that a check had been made for the amount of the bill on the day the articles were purchased. He had no difficulty in proving his case when the check was presented at the store.

Are you making use of the protection that a Checking Account gives?

Why tolerate cracking plaster?

BY UPSONIZING, you can have walls and ceilings of enduring charm. Nearly every home—probably your own—has one or more rooms that are a source of embarrassment because of their appearance.

Yet you can easily transform such a room—simply by having your carpenter apply Upson Board right over the old plaster.

Upson Board is the nearest-perfect wall and ceiling material for every kind of building, new or old. It has the enviable record of less than one complaint to every 5,000,000 feet sold and used.

Upson Board is different! It is neither brittle nor absorbent like some boards—thus it reduces waste in handling and saves $5 to $15 per room in painting.

Applied with Upson Fasteners, Upson Board is the only board held securely in place from the back. Disfiguring nail-holes, the big objection to wall board, are eliminated.

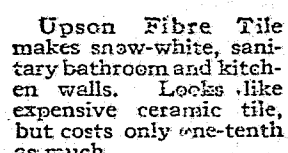

Although fittingly used in the finest of homes as well as the modest cottage, Upson Board is not expensive.

OLD BILL SAYS

We saw an article in the Globe about John Hewitt and Robert Troxell of New York arrested recently down to Brunswick for smuggling whiskey. They had given 75 quarts to farmers to pull them out of snow drifts. My! my! I didn't suppose there were 75 farmers in the State of Maine that would drink whiskey, the "vile stuff," but the way the smugglers got found out, one of these farmer's wives reported it to chief Edwards.

I suppose the farmer, when he grabbed his milk pail that night didn't steal just right and landed in the wood box, might have made Mrs. Farmer angry or perhaps he felt so good, that he thought he was the head of the family and said so in her hearing, thereby causing an argument with rolling pin.—Old Bill.

TAXATION AND HIGH COST OF LIVING

The mass of the people must feel a great relief at the adjournment of the legislature. The Governor has had a hard fight with it to keep down the appropriations which are getting to be enormous and all out of reason. "The Interests" have carried matters with a high hand and seem to have had altogether too much influence with the legislators, some say that they have spent piles of money, but whether legitimate or otherwise, does not clearly appear. Lobbyists and unsavory politicians, however, have been much in evidence. This is coming to be a great nuisance. A lobbyist is a pernicious character around the state house and ought to be sat down on. The state tax rate will be about seven per cent for this and for next year.

But for Governor Baxter, it would have been much higher. It should be very much lower. The burden of taxation is being harder and harder to bear. The special interests and managers of affairs in our state, counties and municipalities don't seem to care how much these burdens are. They appear to lack capacity and sense of the fitness of things. A tax rate of five and six per cent, is all out of reason and ruinous.

The time is near at hand when there will come a kick from the people and they will elect to office men who will manage the affairs entrusted to them economically, and strive to bring back normal conditions and not to run matters extravagantly in times of peace as in war times. The men who seek public preferment on these lines have a future before them. Those who take the other course, no matter how "good fellows" they are, and how popular they have been, will sink into political oblivion. Nothing is surer than this.

The Governor won a great triumph over "The Interests" in the Kennebec Reservoir matter. Those hundreds in Oxford county who signed his petitions for a referendum must feel great satisfaction at the outcome. There were some three hundred in Norway alone it is stated, and at the Pomona Grange at Welchville last week it is said a resolution was passed unanimously, favoring the Governor in the controversy with the legislature. Unless all signs fail, there will be some highly interesting developments in the political field next year.

SKETCH WELL KNOWN HOTEL MAN

We copy from "Seen En Route" of the News and Critic of Laconia, N. H., the following:

"Another interesting call was made the past week on G. D. Stratton, a retired hotel proprietor of the White Mountain region and in the Northern part of the state and Maine. He now resides in a pretty cottage on North Pleasant street which he purchased a few years ago. "The call was made more particularly to get further data concerning his career, and have him give more in detail an account of the big snow storm that happened in the winter of 1899 when he was living on a farm, purchased in Lincoln, Maine."

He said the snowstorm in question raged the last three days of October of that year, and that there was a fall of snow of two and half feet on the level, that blocked the roads and required strenuous endeavor on the part of the farmers. All turned out after the storm to break the roads.

Mr. Stratton then gave a brief synopsis of his career from boyhood. Born in 1843 at Chester, Maine, 55 miles north of Bangor; that his father was a hotel man; that he himself previous to entering the hotel business had first engaged in small way in the livery business, having purchased in 1862 in Mattawaukeag stables on the then famous stage line from that town to Fort Kent; that two winters of the nine years in the hotel and stable business his losses were enormous. He played in hauling groceries and supplies to the northern side of Mr. Katahdin, for the camps and other requirements in lumber operations on Sourdunk stream.

The haul amounted to about 220 tons in the aggregate and drawn over rough roads, a venture that few men cared to make but successfully accomplished by him. He also acquired the ownership of the Mattawaukeag house but sold it in 1881 and then purchased the Gorham, N. H. House, and continued the business there until he leased of the Grand Trunk railway the Alpine house of that town, which was much resorted to by passengers from Portland to Montreal, who frequently stopped over for its celebrated suppers and breakfasts.

In 1886, Mr. Stratton built the Umbagog house at Errol, which he operated in connection with the Alpine house for several years. He remained at the Alpine house for 23 years until it closed business in 1905, when it was sold to Charles Chandler and moved back onto Main Street, Gorham and remodeled and christened the Mount Madison. Mr. Stratton left Gorham, N. H. in 1907 and with his wife came back to Laconia for residence to be near the home of his daughter, Mrs. A. H. Harriman. Mr. Stratton is a very pleasant gentleman to meet, and delights in talking over the days of his active business experiences. He admitted that he would like to live over the old days, and said that he missed "the boys" of his former associations.

Mr. Stratton while in Gorham was a busy man. Besides running his hotels he had a financial interest in many of the new enterprises developed along the Grand Trunk. He owned stock in the Paris Manufacturing Company of So. Paris, was a director in the Rumford Falls National Bank; had stock and a big financial interest in the Lewiston Daily Sun on its organization also water and electric light companies. A finger in, everything making and losing money.

BACK ACHED TERRIBLY

Mrs. Robinson Tells How She Found Relief by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

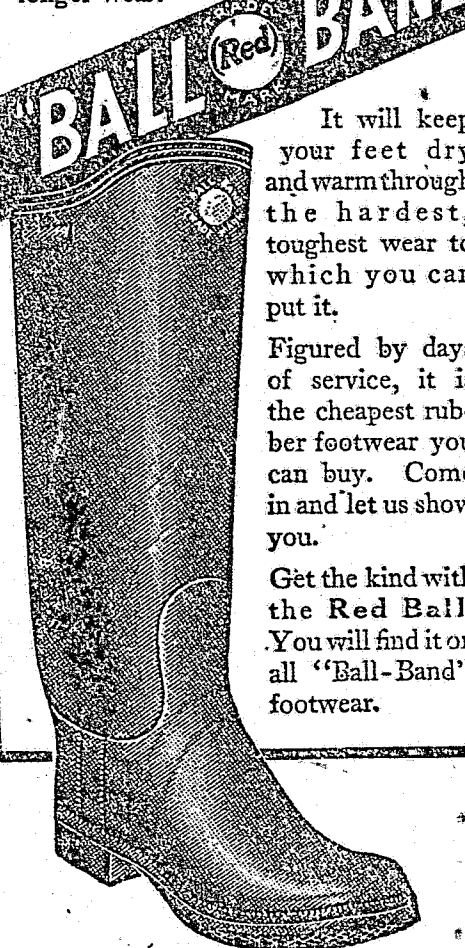

Amarillo, Texas.—"My back was my greatest trouble. It would ache so that it would almost kill me and I would have cramps. I suffered in this way about three years; then a lady friend suggested that I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have had better health since, keep house and am able to do my work. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friends as it has certainly given me great relief."

—Mrs. C. B. Robinson, 608 N. Lincoln St., Amarillo, Tex. The Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine for women. It relieves the troubles which cause such symptoms as backache, painful times, irregularity, tired and worn-out feelings and nervousness. This is shown again and again by such letters as Mrs. Robinson writes as well as by one woman telling another. These women know what it did for them. It is surely worth your trial.

Housewives make a great mistake in allowing themselves to become so ill that it is well-nigh impossible for them to attend to their necessary household duties.

BOY SCOUT NOTES

Extra Dope on 100 Mile Relay, Oxford County

The 100 mile relay race to be run Apr. 28th by Oxford County Boy Scouts is the talk of the Grand Trunk-Bamford Loop. Sunrise to sunset and the evening Street Relay at Rumford is the goal.

Each troop that puts across its local Relay race 100% (without any mix-up, not considering the average speed) will receive a beautiful streamer inscribed "Boy Scout Relay—100 Miles—Oxford County." This streamer will be such that it may be attached to the troop American flag.

A special prize will go to the troop making the best average time. On account of the variety of road conditions and the distances, this will be an indefinite judge of the best Relay team. In one way it will be a distinct honor—in another way it will not hold the significance that will go with the official relay streamer for 100% performance.

Oxford County Boy Scouts are putting this race across to show that there is co-operation between the various troops, to prove that they are alive locally, and to win the honor of being pioneers in the first 100 mile relay race to be run in the State of Maine.

Bryant's Pond Scouts
Some 100 people attended the Scout demonstration and feed given by Troop No. 1, Bryant's Pond, Friday night, the 6th. This proved a very successful affair and a credit to troop one as well as to the people who showed their interest in scouting by 'turning out' well.

Mr. H. E. Willard, president of the Scout Board, opened the affair with a short talk. Executive Perham gave a short talk on County Scouting and was in charge of the demonstration. Benjamin R. Billings served refreshment that warmed, filled and pleased.

The demonstration program was as follows:
Elementary Wig-Wag Signalling and Message Sending—Sidney Ring, Frank Jordan, and James Billings.

Fireman's Drag—Otis Dudley and Joe Farnum.
Fireman's Life—Sidney Ring and Percy Dudley.

Roller Bandaging—Lawrence Jordan and James Billings (with assistants).
Pledge of Allegiance to Flag—By all.

Knot Tying—Jay Willard, Linwood Ring, Otis Dudley (in charge of Frank Jordan).
Triangular Bandaging—Percy Dudley and Sidney Ring.

Scout Oath and Laws—by Troop.
Games—Capt. team No. 1, L. Jordan; Capt. team No. 2, James Billings. Question, Relay, Leap Frog Relay, Race Relay won by score of 10-5 by Team No. 2.

Special—Every member of the above named list of scouts (except one) were members in good standing at the Oxford County Scout Camp for 1922.

At the Scout Demonstration Friday night, C. B. Swanton, principal of Woodstock High School was named as the new scoutmaster of Troop No. 1. Already he has been on one hike and several regular meetings and has the backing of every member of the scout troop and the townspeople besides.

Saturday morning a picked squad of some eight scouts started en route for West Paris on foot. On the way they measured the Relay Route from Mark Allen's store to the West Paris High School building. The day was balmy, but the 33 foot tape was a somewhat tedious affair to measure about seven miles road way. Troop No. 1, is planning on covering their Relay Route in the shortest possible time allowable and already limbering up for the real business on the 28th.

West Paris Scouts On Hike
On Tuesday, the third, Troop No. 1, West Paris, gathered for a hike up the Grand Trunk to the Stone Bridge, in charge of Executive Perham. The day was real spring, both above and below. Nevertheless, the day couldn't be beat.

Dinner preparations and Scoutcraft were the main items on the bill of fare. Official tests in Use of Knife and Hatchet, Tracking, Judge Distance, Height, etc., and First Class Cooking were successfully passed by Tom Perkins, Cyrus Wardwell, Linwood Curtis, Gerry Emery, Stanley Perham took charge of Wig-Wag, signal practice and Edward Burnham 'laid trail' in the tracking test.

Rumford Point-Hanover Scouts
Ninety-eight percent, attendance spoke well for Troop No. 1, Rumford Point-Hanover, Monday night. Two new members applied for membership. Scoutmaster Dwight K. Elliot awarded one Tenderfoot badge to Frank Worcester.

Elwood McPherson was elected President and Thurston Cole elected Scribe. Compass instruction came next in order. Executive Perham spoke of the coming Relay (100 mile) on April 28th. This was greeted with enthusiasm and the following officers elected: Captain, Elwood McPherson; Glenn Hutchins, telephone tender; George Barlow, distance recorder. Several snappy boxing matches gave a touch of color to the finish of the evening's program.

South Paris Scouts On Hike
At the scout meeting Tuesday night, it was decided best to postpone the Overnight Hike the trail bare ground, but fill in with a day hike on the morning. The Relay officials were elected as follows: Clarence Merrill, Capt., and Elmer Thurlow, distance recorder.

At nine o'clock Wednesday morning, Troop No. 1 met in Market Square for the hike. The course took them to Col. Mill, Hungry Hollow, Jackson's Crossing, and home. In spite of the juicy conditions under foot, the weather overhead kept the spirits 100% all day.

Everyone was out for business. Dinner preparations near Cole's mill was an event of importance to all. Scoutcraft and games followed. Tests in fire building, compass direction, knife and hatchet, scout's pace, freeman's lift, second class cooking, use of axe, judge distance, size, etc., and first class cooking were passed by scouts Clarence Merrill, Richard Crockett, Elmer Thurlow, Bernard Dumas, Clifford Dumas, Philip Maxim, Arthur Brooks, James House.

The games of "Go gettum," "Plumb Centre," and weight lifting preceded the start of home by way of track. Some twelve snapshots were taken of the troop while 'at attention', in hiking formation, and in Pyramid Building.

Canton Boy Scouts On Deck
My dear Mr. Perham: I am transmitting to you the troop charter with the names of the boys who have re-registered and the names of seven new scouts.

Our troop is already to take part in the Relay Race of April 28th. If conditions are such this Saturday, we plan to hike to Hartford and measure our course.

Fifteen boys from the troop liked to Worthley Pond on March 23rd. Several boys passed Fire building and Cooking tests. The round trip was about fourteen miles with hard walking.

Several scouts are already to pass their last tests on First Class work. They are all interested in the Wild River and the White Mt. trip coming June 18-23 inclusive. Please send along more information in regard to the trip.

We have not missed a Tuesday meeting since we started. Should like mighty well to have you come and see us again when you can. Troop No. 1, Canton, says they are going to win that Relay.

Yours for Scouting,
W. Linwood Chase, Scoutmaster.
